

Naked Under A Blue Sky

(NAPS)—A fascinating new novel about six strangers who shed their protective facades and find their true selves through a whirlwind journey of the bizarre, is being discovered by readers across the country. The novel, Naked Under A Blue Sky—An Adventure of Spritual Self-Discovery (New World Press, $12.95) is co-authored by Dr. Blair Reynolds and Muriel Wang.

An exquisite novel with fascinating characters. That's the word out on a moving new book by Dr. Blair Reynolds (above) and Muriel Wang.

Five of the six characters: Linus, blind to his own lovability; Ariel, bitter since her sister's death; Dan and Neil, identical twins who seem more like one than two; and Mitch, the aloof, reluctant hero. The sixth character is Jericho, the divine dwarf who gently teaches the others how to look into their souls.

By the novel's end, the six strangers have each experienced a remarkable epiphany. When they turn to thank Jericho for their newfound spiritual joy and freedom, they unexpectedly face the biggest mystery of all.
